How to Find and Use Location Information in Litigation
Presentation by ArcherHall

Determining the location of an individual at a specific point in time can make or break a case. Lawyers have used location data to put defendants at the scene of a murder, place a driver at the scene of a crash, or even show a doctor was not in the hospital during a critical procedure. This presentation provides guidance to know what location data is available, where to find it, how to use it, and the law that governs it. We will provide real-world examples of location data and discuss its use and misuse in trial.

For Attorneys: This activity is approved by the State Bar for 1 hour of credit towards the Minimum Continuing Legal Education requirements.
